- (2) If the misdemeanour was a repeated misdemeanour, the court shall, in particular, take into account whether the previous misdemeanour is of the same kind as the new one, whether both were committed out of the same motives and how much time has passed since the previous punishment.

- (3) When fixing the punishment, a previously imposed punishment may not be considered as an aggravating circumstance if more than two years have passed since the day the decision on that misdemeanour became final.

Mitigation of Punishment

Article 28

When fixing the punishment, if the court establishes that the misdemeanour is not of a serious nature and that there are mitigating circumstances indicating that the purpose of punishment can be achieved by a lighter measure, the prescribed punishment may be mitigated as follows:

- 1) by fixing a punishment below the minimum prescribed for that misdemeanour, but not below the minimum established by law for that kind of punishment;
- 2) by imposing a fine instead of the prescribed imprisonment.

 - 1) if imprisonment is fixed for all concurrent misdemeanours, a single imprisonment punishment shall be imposed, not longer than 60 days;

- (2) Misdemeanour against person may constitute a continuing misdemeanour only when committed against the same person.

II. WARNING MEASURES

Types of Warning Measures

Article 32

Warning measures which may be imposed in line with this Law shall be admonition and suspended sentence.

Purpose of Warning Measures

Article 33

Purpose of an admonition and suspended sentence, within the general purpose of misdemeanour sanctions, shall be to avoid imposition on the perpetrator of a punishment for minor misdemeanour when that is considered not necessary for misdemeanour law protection and when it is reasonable to expect that a warning (admonition) or warning with threat of punishment (suspended sentence) will have sufficient deterring effect on the perpetrator.

Admonition

Article 34

- (1) When circumstances substantially reduce the perpetrator's culpability, so that it may be expected that he will refrain from committing misdemeanours in the future even without the imposition of the prescribed punishment or when the misdemeanour constitutes a particularly minor form of a misdemeanour, the court may, instead of a punishment, impose an admonition.
- (2) An admonition may also be imposed when the perpetrator, prior to the rendering the decision on the misdemeanour, meets the prescribed obligation or remedies or compensates the damage caused.

Suspended sentence

Article 35

(Law on Amendments to the Law on Misdemeanours, Official Gazette of Montenegro 039/11 as of 04 August 2011, Article 3)

- (1) By pronouncing a suspended sentence, the court pronounces a punishment to the perpetrator and orders at the same time that such punishment shall not be enforced provided that the convicted person does not reoffend within a term set by the court for not shorter than three months or longer than one year (probation term) or meets another requirement imposed by the court.
- (2) By way of exception, under a suspended sentence, the court may also impose on the perpetrator a protective measure prohibiting the performance of a profession, activity or duty, and at the same time determine that such measure shall not be enforced if, during the period set by the court — which may not be shorter than three months nor longer than one year (the probation period), the perpetrator does not commit another misdemeanour or meets another requirement imposed by the court.
- (3) The court shall impose a suspended sentence when it finds that the purpose of punishment can be achieved even without the enforcement of the punishment, particularly taking into account the perpetrator's position towards the misdemeanour or towards the victim, and whether he will compensate for the damage caused by the misdemeanour.

Obligations of a Person imposed a Suspended Sentence

Article 36

- (1) In addition to the imposed suspended sentence, the court may impose on the perpetrator of the misdemeanour one or more of the following obligations:
 - 1) to compensate for the damage caused;
 - 2) to return any benefit obtained through the misdemeanour;
 - 3) to meet other obligations prescribed by law that are appropriate to the misdemeanour committed.
- (2) The time limit for meeting the obligations referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be determined by the court within the probation period.

Revocation of a Suspended Sentence

Article 37

- (1) Court shall revoke the suspended sentence if the convicted person, during the probation period, commits one or more misdemeanours of the same kind and severity or if he fails to meet the imposed condition.
- (2) If the convicted person does not commit another misdemeanour during the probation period, the court shall, after having reviewed all the circumstances of the misdemeanour committed and the perpetrator himself, particularly the gravity of the misdemeanour and motives out of which they were committed, decide whether to revoke the suspended sentence.
- 3) In case of revocation of suspended sentence, the court shall, when applying provisions of Article 29 of this Law, impose a sentence and/or protective measure for the previous and new misdemeanour, considering the punishment and/or protective measure from the revoked decision as already established.
- (4) Where the court does not revoke a suspended sentence, it can impose a suspended sentence or a punishment for the new misdemeanour. When suspended is imposed, the court shall fix a cumulative punishment for the previous and new misdemeanour, taking into account the punishment established before, in line with the provisions of this Law for fixing punishment for concurrent misdemeanours and schedule a new probation period.

- (5) The court shall revoke the suspended sentence and order the enforcement of the imposed punishment if the convicted person, during the probation period, fails to meet the obligations imposed, although he was able to fulfil them. If it is established that meeting such obligations is impossible, the court may replace them with other obligations or release the convicted person from the imposed obligations.
- 6) A suspended sentence may not be revoked after the expiry of one year from the end of the probation period, regardless of the reasons for revocation.

Suspended Sentence with Protective Supervision

Article 38

- (1) The court may order that the perpetrator who has been imposed a suspended sentence be placed under protective supervision for a specific period of time during the probation period if, on account of his personality, personal history, behaviour after the commission of the misdemeanour and particularly his attitude to the victim and the circumstances of commission of the misdemeanour, it may be reasonably expected that the protective supervision will better serve the purpose of the suspended sentence.
- (2) Protective supervision shall include the measures of assistance, care, supervision and protection, as laid down by law.
- (3) Protective supervision shall be ordered by the court in the decision by which it imposes the suspended sentence and pronounces the measures of protective supervision, their duration and manner for their enforcement.
- (4) Protective supervision shall be carried out by professionals of the administrative authority responsible for the enforcement of criminal sanctions.
- (5) Protective supervision may last for a specified period within the probation period, but it may also be terminated earlier by a court decision if the reasons for its imposition cease to exist.

Special Obligations under Protective Supervision

Article 39

Protective supervision may comprise one or more of the following obligations:

- 1) undergoing treatment in an appropriate medical institution;
- 2) refraining from the use of drugs and alcohol;
- 3) visiting particular professional and other counselling offices or institutions and following their instructions;
- 4) refraining from visiting certain places, hospitality facilities, sports events or performances if that may be a chance or incentive for repeat offending.

Provisions of Article 37 of this Law shall apply to the revocation of the suspended sentence with protective supervision.

- (2) A decision on a security measure or seizure of pecuniary gain may be challenged even though there is no violation of law referred to in Article 205 paragraph 1 item 5 of this Law, if the court rendered this decision incorrectly or did not order a security measure or the forfeiture of property gain although legal conditions for it existed.  - 3) whether the substantive law stipulating the misdemeanour has been violated to the detriment of the defendant as referred to in Article 205 of this Law.
- (2) If the appeal lodged in favour of the defendant does not contain reasons for the appeal and elaboration of those reasons, the examination will be focused on violations referred to in paragraph 1 items 2 and 3 of this Article, as well as the examination of the punishment, protective measure and asset confiscation.
- (3) Appeal lodged on the basis of reasons referred to in Article 206 paragraph 2 of this Law can be lodged by the appellant only if he establishes, in the appeal, that at the time of the hearing he did not know of the evidence on which their appeal is based or that they did propose that certain evidence be presented immediately upon learning of it at the hearing but their proposal was rejected by the judge.
- (4) If an appeal has been lodged only in favour of the defendant, the decision may not be modified to the detriment of the defendant with regard to a legal qualification of the misdemeanour offence and misdemeanour sanction.

- (6) If the second instance court, upon anybody's appeal, finds that the grounds on which the decision was rendered in favour of the defendant, are also of benefit to any of the co-defendants who did not file an appeal or did not file an appeal along the same lines, it shall proceed by virtue of an office as if such an appeal has been filed.

- (2) A second instance court may also partially revoke the first instance decision if the certain parts of the decision can be severed out without causing a detriment to a rightful decision.

 - 2) if it has determined different facts from those determined by the first instance decision;
 - 3) if the court of first instance erroneously evaluated documents and other written evidence whereby the decision of the first instance court is exclusively grounded on such evidence;
 - 4) if the court of first instance based on facts it determined drew wrong conclusion about existence of other facts and such facts form grounds of the decision;
 - 5) finds that the facts in the first instance decision have been correctly evaluated and that considering the determined facts, a different decision should be rendered through the appropriate implementation of the law or if it finds that there are violations of the law that could be eliminated without vacating the first instance decision;
 - 6) it finds that in the course of fixing the punishment or imposing a protective measure all of the circumstances affecting the proper fixing of the punishment or legal imposing of protective measures have not been taken into consideration;
 - 7) circumstances taken into consideration have been erroneously evaluated.

 - 2) the court's decision resulted from a criminal offence committed by the judge or another authorised person who took part in the proceedings;
 - 3) new facts are presented or new evidence is submitted which, either by themselves or in connection with the previously established evidence, could have led to a different decision had they been known in the earlier proceedings;
 - 4) it is established that a person has already been finally sanctioned for the same act in misdemeanour proceedings, or was, prior to the misdemeanour decision, found guilty in criminal proceedings for an offence encompassing the elements of the misdemeanour.
 - 5) in the case of a conviction for a continuing misdemeanour or any other misdemeanour which under law includes several acts of the same kind or several acts of a different kind, new facts or new evidence are presented indicating that the convicted person did not commit an act covered by the adjudicated misdemeanour, provided that these facts are likely to lead to the application of a less severe law or are likely to affect substantially the fixing of punishment;
 - 6) the European Court of Human Rights or another court established by a ratified international treaty finds that human rights and freedoms have been violated in the course of the misdemeanour proceedings and that the decision is based on such violations, provided that the reopening of the proceedings can remedy such violation,
- (2) In the cases referred to in paragraph 1, items 1 and 2 of this Article, it must be proven by a final decision that the abovementioned persons were found guilty of the cited criminal offences. If the proceedings against these persons cannot be conducted due to their death or circumstances barring prosecution, the facts under paragraph 1, items 1 and 2 of this Article, may be established by presenting other evidence as well.

Contents of the Request

If the request fails to contain this information, the court shall call on the applicant to supplement his request within a specified term.

Deciding on the Request

Article 220

- (2) If the court does not dismiss the request, a copy of the request shall be delivered to the applicant for the initiation of the misdemeanour proceedings, who shall submit a response to the request within eight days. - (2) If the court establishes that the reasons for which it allowed the reopening of the proceedings also exist for other co-defendant who did not submit the request, it shall proceed ex officio as if such a request exists.
- (3) In the ruling allowing the reopening of misdemeanour proceedings, the court shall decide that a new hearing be scheduled immediately and may also decide to suspend or postpone the enforcement of the decision on the misdemeanour against which the reopening has been allowed.

provisions of the law that have been applied in the previously completed procedure with final force and effect. In the new proceedings, the court shall not be bound by the previously rendered decision.

- (2) The decision on the misdemeanour rendered in new proceedings shall determine whether the previous decision is partially or entirely revoked or whether it remains in force.
