Police officer shall conduct themselves at work and outside work in such a manner as not to harm the reputation of the Ministry and the Police in line with this Law and the Code of Police Ethics.

Code of Police Ethics and the act governing conduct of a police officer towards subordinates and superiors and personal appearance shall be adopted by the Ministry.

Ethics Committee Article 30

Application of the Code of Police Ethics shall be monitored by the Ethics Committee.

Ethics Committee shall comprise of seven members:

- two police officers, at least one of whom holds the highest police rank, proposed by the Police Director;
- one representative of the trade union of employees of the Police;
- two representatives of the Ministry; and
- two representatives of non-governmental organisations dealing with human rights in relation to Police work.

President and members of the Ethics Committee shall be appointed by the Minister for a period of two years.

President and members of the Ethics Committee shall be entitled to remuneration for their work.

Representatives of the non-governmental organisations referred to in paragraph 2 indent 4 of this Article shall be appointed upon proposal of non-governmental organisations, on the basis of a public call published by the Ministry, in line with a separate regulation.

Powers of the Ethics Committee Article 31

Ethics Committee shall, upon proposals, complaints and petitions submitted by citizens and police officers and on the basis of information obtained on its own initiative, issue an opinion as to whether particular conduct of a police officer constitutes a violation of the Code of Police Ethics.

Ethics Committee may request the necessary data from the Ministry, the Police, state administration authorities, citizens and other entities possessing information relating to the proposals, complaints and petitions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Opinion referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be submitted by the Ethics Committee to the police officer, their immediate superior, the Police Director, the Minister and the person who submitted the proposal, complaint or petition.

Where it determines that particular conduct of a police officer constitutes a violation of the Code of Police Ethics, the Ethics Committee shall initiate or propose the initiation of appropriate proceedings.

Ethics Committee shall draft an annual report on its work containing an overview and analysis of decisions made during the year and opinions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, as well as an assessment of the situation with recommendations.

Ethics Committee shall submit the report referred to in paragraph 5 of this Article to the Minister and the Police Director no later than 31 January of the current year for the previous year.

Work of the Ethics Committee shall be public, unless a complainant requests anonymous consideration of the complaint.

Ethics Committee shall adopt Rules of Procedure governing the detailed manner of work and other matters of importance for its work.

Right to Complaint

Article 32

Natural or legal person shall have the right to submit a complaint concerning the work of a police officer where they consider that the police officer, while performing police affairs, violated any of their rights or freedoms or caused damage, within 30 days from the date on which the damage occurred or the right or freedom was violated.

Police shall respond to the complainant as soon as possible and no later than 30 days from the date of receipt of the complaint.

Complainant shall be allowed access to the case file relating to the verification and establishment of facts concerning the complaint.

Regarding the complaint referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the Police may request the opinion of the Ethics Committee.

Where the complainant is dissatisfied with the response or does not receive a response within the period referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, the complainant may submit an objection to the Ministry within 15 days from the date of receipt of the response or expiry of the period for responding.

Minister shall decide on the objection referred to in paragraph 5 of this Article within 30 days from the date of receipt of the objection.

Detailed manner of acting upon complaints referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Right to Judicial Protection and Compensation for Damage

Article 33

Person who considers that their rights or freedoms have been violated through the performance of police affairs or that they have suffered damage shall have the right to judicial protection and compensation for damage.

Assistance in Enforcement

Article 34

Police officers shall, at their request, provide assistance to state authorities, state administration authorities, local self-government authorities and local administration authorities in enforcement of their decisions, as well as in other cases prescribed by law, where enforcement has been attempted and prevented by physical resistance or a serious threat by the person in respect of whom enforcement proceedings are conducted or where physical resistance during enforcement proceedings may reasonably be expected, in line with law.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, police officers shall not provide assistance in enforcement of decisions to authorities whose officers are authorised to use means of coercion that ensure the unobstructed conduct of enforcement proceedings.

Request referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be submitted, no later than five days before the date set for enforcement of the decision, to the organisational unit of the Police in whose area assistance is requested.

Notwithstanding paragraph 3 of this Article, where reasons of urgency so require, police officers shall provide assistance without delay upon the oral request of the authority referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, provided that the authority submits a written request within 24 hours.

Together with the request for assistance, authorities referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall submit evidence that enforcement was attempted and prevented by physical resistance or a serious threat by the person in respect of whom enforcement proceedings are conducted or evidence that physical resistance during enforcement proceedings may reasonably be expected.

Request for assistance shall be decided upon by the head of the organisational unit of the Police referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, authorised by the Police Director, without delay and no later than within 48 hours from the date of submission of the request. Where the authority referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article is dissatisfied with the response or does not receive a response within the period referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article, it may submit an objection to the Ministry within three days from the date of delivery of the response or expiry of the period for delivery of the response.

Police officer shall submit a report on the assistance provided to the competent organisational unit of the Police and to the Ministry.

Before providing assistance, a police officer shall have the right to verify the circumstances of the event and check persons to whom enforcement relates through databases and records accessible to the Police.

Before enforcement, a police officer shall temporarily seize weapons and other items suitable for endangering security, in line with this Law, where it is established that the person to whom enforcement relates or another member of their household lawfully possesses a weapon.

Content of the request for assistance, manner of providing assistance and reporting on the assistance provided shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Vehicles, Vessels, Aircraft, Weapons, Special Equipment and Means

Article 35

For the purpose of performing affairs prescribed by law, police officers shall use vehicles, vessels, aircraft (helicopters, unmanned aerial vehicles, etc.), weapons, special equipment or devices for detecting and disabling the use of unmanned aerial vehicles, information and communication equipment and systems, as well as other special equipment and means.

Article 46

Exercise of police powers shall be proportionate to the need for which they are exercised. Where several police powers are available, the power enabling timely performance of the task with the least harmful consequences and least restriction of human rights and freedoms shall be exercised.

When means of coercion are used, they shall, where possible, be used gradually, from milder to more severe means, with the minimum force necessary.

Protection of Injured Parties and Other Persons

Article 47

Police shall, for as long as justified reasons exist, undertake appropriate measures to protect an injured party and another person who has provided or may provide data relevant to criminal proceedings, as well as a person connected with them, where they are endangered by the perpetrator of a criminal offence or another person.

Police officer shall also safeguard information whose disclosure would endanger a person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article and may, when reporting, withhold information on the identity of the person from whom the notification was received.

Measures referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be undertaken in a manner ensuring full protection of the confidentiality of the identity of the injured party and other persons.

Obligation to Safeguard Data Article 48

Police officer shall safeguard classified data and personal data obtained during or in connection with the performance of police affairs, in line with law.

Obligation to safeguard data shall continue after termination of the performance of police affairs or termination of employment in the Ministry.

Police officer may be released from the obligation to safeguard classified data in line with the law governing classified data.

Police officer may make publicly available personal data (hereinafter referred to as: personal data) obtained in the course of work, in line with the law governing personal data protection.

Execution of Orders Article 49

Police officer shall execute all orders of the immediate superior issued for the purpose of performing police affairs, except an order whose execution would constitute a criminal offence.

Where an order is considered unlawful for other reasons, the police officer shall inform the Minister, the Police Director and the head of the organisational unit to which the police officer is assigned.

Police shall provide protection to the police officer referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, in line with law.

Official Badge and Official Identification Card Article 50

Official identification card and official badge shall be issued to a police officer for the purpose of proving their status.

Official identification card and official badge shall be issued by the Ministry.

Records shall be kept of issued official identification cards and official badges and shall, among other data, contain personal data of police officers.

Design and content of the official identification card, design of the official badge and content and manner of keeping the records referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Uniform, Insignia of Ranks and Special Insignia Article 51

Police officers shall perform police affairs in uniform on which there are insignia of ranks and special insignia.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, police officers may perform certain police affairs in civilian clothes where required by the nature and conditions of performing those affairs.

Persons who are not police officers may not wear uniforms identical or similar to those worn by police officers.

Uniforms of participants in the basic police education programme referred to in Article 147 of this Law and of police interns shall be identical to uniforms worn by police officers, but shall bear different and prominently displayed insignia.

Uniforms, insignia of ranks and special insignia shall be determined by the Government.

Presentation of Credentials and Identification of Police Officers

Article 52

Where a police officer performs police affairs in civilian clothes, they shall, before exercising police powers, identify themselves by presenting the official identification card. Police officer in uniform shall, before exercising police powers, identify themselves by presenting the official badge or official identification card only where requested by the person in respect of whom the police power is exercised.

Notwithstanding paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article, a police officer shall not identify themselves in that manner where this could jeopardise achievement of the objective in performing the police affair.

In the case referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, when exercising police powers, the police officer shall identify themselves by saying "Police".

Provision of paragraph 4 of this Article shall not apply where this could jeopardise achievement of the objective in performing the police affair.

Where, due to the use of special equipment in the performance of police affairs, presentation of credentials or identification of police officers is not possible, a visible insignia containing a combination of letters and/or numbers shall be placed on the uniform or parts of special equipment so as to enable identification of the police officer.

Special records shall be kept of insignia assigned under paragraph 6 of this Article.

Detailed characteristics of the insignia referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Exercise of Police Powers in Respect of Vulnerable Categories of Persons

Article 53

Police officers shall, in all cases and particularly in cases prescribed by law, exercise special care when exercising police powers in respect of persons under 14 years of age, obviously ill, elderly and infirm persons, persons with disabilities, persons with significantly reduced mobility and women whose pregnancy is visible, subject to restrictions prescribed by law.

Police officers shall exercise police powers in respect of persons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article with caution, paying particular attention to their mental development, sensitivity, personal characteristics and privacy.

When exercising police powers in respect of persons with disabilities, police officers shall, where they consider it necessary, request assistance from a person with knowledge of the appropriate manner of communication and treatment of a person with disabilities.

Affairs under the law governing treatment of minors in criminal proceedings shall be performed by police officers specially trained to deal with minor perpetrators of criminal offences and minors participating in criminal proceedings.

As a rule, police powers in respect of minors shall be exercised in the presence of a parent or legal representative and a defence attorney.

Notwithstanding paragraph 5 of this Article, police powers in respect of minors shall be exercised without the presence of a parent or legal representative, in the presence of a representative of the authority responsible for social and child protection or a trusted third person, where there are grounds for suspicion that the parent or legal representative committed a criminal offence or misdemeanour against the minor.

For the purpose of preventing the imminent commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour, a police officer may exercise police powers in respect of a minor without the presence of a parent, legal representative, defence attorney, trusted third person or representative of the authority responsible for social and child protection.

Exercise of Police Powers in Respect of a Person Enjoying Immunity

Article 54

In respect of a person enjoying immunity, a police officer shall act in line with a ratified international agreement and a separate regulation.

Police officer shall immediately inform the immediate superior of action taken in respect of the person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Immediate superior shall inform the Police Director of the acting referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, without delay.

Exercise of Police Powers in Respect of Military Personnel

Article 55

Police officer shall also exercise police powers prescribed by this Law in respect of military personnel, unless otherwise regulated by a separate law.

Upon exercise of police powers in respect of persons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the competent organisational unit of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of Montenegro shall be informed thereof without delay.

Service Weapons, Other Equipment and Means for Performing Police Affairs

Article 56

Police officer shall, where required by the nature of work, be required and authorised to carry a service weapon and ammunition and other equipment and means for performing police affairs during working hours.

Police officer may carry a service weapon and ammunition outside working hours as well.

Assignment of a Police Officer Abroad

Article 57

Police officer may participate in the performance of police affairs abroad under the conditions laid down by an international agreement.

Decision on assignment of a police officer abroad shall be made by the Minister, upon proposal of the Police Director, on the basis of merit and work performance.

Police officer shall not be assigned abroad to perform the affairs referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article without their consent.

Police officer assigned abroad in line with paragraph 1 of this Article shall conclude a contract with the Ministry.

Detailed conditions and manner of selection of a police officer to be assigned abroad, their rights and obligations and content of the contract referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Cooperation with a Police Officer of Another State

Article 58

Police officer of another state or an international organisation may perform certain police affairs in the territory of Montenegro, in line with this Law, with the prior approval of the Police Director.

Police officer may, together with a police officer of another state or an international organisation, undertake certain police affairs within a joint investigation where prescribed by law or an international agreement.

Return of the Official Identification Card, Official Badge, Weapons and Other Equipment and Means

Article 59

Police officer shall return the official identification card, official badge, weapon and other equipment and means for performing police affairs where:

- they are found not to have the required psychological and/or physical fitness to perform police affairs in line with this Law, on the date of delivery of the report establishing psychological and physical fitness;
- they are temporarily suspended from duty, on the date of delivery of the decision on temporary suspension;
- their employment in a police rank terminates, on the date of termination of employment in a police rank; or
- during temporary incapacity for work.

Official identification card, official badge, weapon and other equipment and means for performing police affairs shall be withdrawn from a police officer who fails to act in line with paragraph 1 of this Article.

Immediate superior of the police officer shall ensure withdrawal of the official identification card, official badge, weapon and other equipment and means for performing police affairs.

2. Processing of Personal and Other Data

Processing Article 60

In performing affairs within its competence, the Police may process personal and other data (hereinafter referred to as: data) to the extent necessary for the performance of police affairs and exercise of police powers.

Processing of personal data shall be processing within the meaning of the law governing personal data protection.

Police, in line with the law, shall process data on:

- 1) a person from whom danger arises;
- 2) a person who is in danger;
- 3) a missing person,
- 4) a person in respect of whom there are grounds for suspicion that they are preparing or have committed a criminal offence or misdemeanour;
- 5) a wanted person and a person connected with them;
- 6) a person who possesses items acquired or generated in connection with the commission of a criminal offence or unlawfully obtained pecuniary gain, as well as unlawfully obtained pecuniary gain and persons to whom such gain was transferred;
- 7) a facility from which danger arises or which is in danger, as well as persons, items and facilities which are or will be in the immediate vicinity of certain persons, facilities and areas referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law; and
- 8) other data prescribed by law.

Manner of Data Collection Article 61

As a rule, data shall be collected directly from the data subject.

Data may be collected from publicly available sources, state authorities, state administration authorities, local self-government authorities, local administration authorities, business entities and legal and natural persons.

While performing regular police affairs, a police officer shall be authorised to collect data in public places, while respecting the right to protection of privacy and family life.

Where necessary and possible and where this does not jeopardise the exercise of police powers, data on a person may also be collected from another person without the knowledge of the data subject.

Where collection of data in the manner referred to in paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of this Article would not achieve the legitimate objective of protecting the public interest in the performance of police affairs, including prevention of potential danger, data may also be collected in another manner prescribed by law.

Where collection of data would endanger the life, health, bodily integrity or property of persons from whom data are collected, a police officer shall undertake measures to protect those persons.

Police officer shall inform the immediate superior of the measures referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article without delay.

Request for Collection of Data Article 62

Authorities, business entities and legal and natural persons referred to in Article 61 paragraph 2 of this Law shall, upon request of the Police, allow inspection of data or provide data kept in records within their competence and powers which are necessary for the Police to perform affairs and exercise powers prescribed by law, within the period specified in the request.

Request referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall contain the legal basis and reasons for using the data, data subject to the request, including data necessary to determine the identity of a person or the identity of an item.

Where the requested data are used to initiate or continue an investigation in criminal proceedings, reasons for using the data shall not be stated when initiating or continuing the investigation.

Police may inspect electronically data kept in records by local self-government authorities, local administration authorities, business entities and legal and natural persons where technically possible, in line with law.

Police shall collect data on its own initiative on the basis of this or another law or on the basis of an order of a court or state prosecutor, in line with the law governing criminal proceedings.

Police shall warn the authorities, business entities and legal and natural persons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article that they may not disclose that data have been collected from them in line with paragraphs 3 and 5 of this Article, unless otherwise prescribed by law.

Authorities, business entities and legal and natural persons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall keep records of inspection, access and provision of data, containing information that the Police inspected or accessed the data or that the data were provided to it electronically, as well as the date and time when inspection or access began and ended.

Police shall keep records of police officers who inspected or accessed the data referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Information, Information and Communication, Voice Recording and Geospatial Systems Article 63

In performing affairs within their competence, the Ministry and the Police shall use information, information and communication, voice recording and geospatial systems, in line with this Law.

For the purpose of undertaking security and data protection measures against unlawful destruction, loss or alteration, unauthorised disclosure of or access to data processed using information and information and communication systems, the Ministry and the Police shall process data on all users granted the right to access services of those systems.

Ministry and the Police shall, for the purpose of controlling the work of police officers and other officers and conducting proceedings upon complaints, process data collected by recording audio and other communications in the closed police radio-communication system for transmission of speech, messages and data and by calls to on-call services and other publicly available telephone numbers used by the Ministry and the Police (voice recording systems).

Ministry and the Police shall, for the purpose of performing affairs within their competence through use of the geographic information system, visualise facilities and events, conduct spatial and temporal analyses of events, provide support and assistance in decision-making, distribute services for entry and updating of geospatial data and services for locating devices for transmission of speech, messages and data referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article and other mobile radio-communication devices and process data or keep records on location, vector geospatial data and raster and alphanumeric geospatial data. Ministry and the Police shall keep records of the procurement, use, condition and destruction of information and information and communication equipment, as well as records of unique code names in voice recording systems in connection with the performance of affairs within their competence.

Planning and implementation of information security and cyber protection measures shall be carried out in line with a separate law.

Manner of designing, establishing, managing, developing and maintaining information and communication, voice recording and geospatial systems shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Records on Processed Data and Deadlines for Storing and Deleting Data

Article 64

In performing affairs within their competence, the Ministry or the Police shall be controllers of personal data filing systems, namely records in which data are systematised and which they shall keep, in particular on:

- 1) criminal offences and perpetrators of criminal offences, filed criminal charges, victims of criminal offences, witnesses and injured parties - five years from data entry;
- 2) requests for initiating misdemeanour proceedings and perpetrators of misdemeanours - three years from the date of initiation of proceedings or one year where proceedings have not been initiated;
- 3) persons sought and missing persons - until they are found or the reasons requiring the search cease to exist or three years from expiry of the limitation period for prosecution for a committed criminal offence or misdemeanour in respect of persons for whom a wanted notice has been issued or whose entry into Montenegro has been prohibited;
- 4) persons in respect of whom identity verification has been conducted - one year from the date of identity verification;
- 5) data collected using video and audio recording equipment, in line with law, as follows:
 - 30 days from the date of creation of data recorded in a public place;
 - five years from the date of creation of data where review of the collected data identifies persons, events or phenomena requiring measures and actions to be undertaken by the Police;
 - five years from completion of proceedings where the collected data are necessary for conducting criminal, misdemeanour or disciplinary proceedings;
- 6) operational information – five years from the day of data processing;
- 7) persons in respect of whom secret surveillance measures have been undertaken in line with the law governing criminal proceedings and measures undertaken in line with that law - five years from the date of data processing;
- 8) events reported to the Police or otherwise learned of by the Police - five years from the date of the report or receipt of information;
- 9) persons whose freedom of movement has been restricted on any grounds - five

- years from the date of restriction of freedom of movement;
- 10) persons summoned for the purpose of collecting information - two years from the date of collection of information;
 - 11) submitted complaints - five years from the date of submission of a complaint;
 - 12) means of coercion used, police officers who used means of coercion and persons against whom means of coercion were used - ten years from the date of use of means of coercion;
 - 13) temporarily seized, lost and found items and items sought - until the sought item is found or the reasons requiring the search cease to exist;
 - 14) data processed by applying the intelligence-led policing model or collected on the basis of work with operational links - five years from the date of data processing;
 - 15) data processed by applying special police actions - five years from the date of data processing;
 - 16) personal data provided for use, purpose, legal basis for use and provision of data for use and period of use of data within the meaning of Article 67 of this Law - ten years from the date of provision of data;
 - 17) issued orders - three years from the date of issue of an order;
 - 18) assistance provided to state authorities, state administration authorities, local self-government authorities and local administration authorities - two years from the date of provision of assistance;
 - 19) applications for public gatherings and public events - two years from the date of submission of an application;
 - 20) data relevant to community policing - five years from the date of data processing;
 - 21) persons, facilities and areas protected by the Police - five years from the date of data processing;
 - 22) results of DNA analyses - retained in line with a separate law;
 - 23) data on secured traces and items that may serve as evidence in criminal and misdemeanour proceedings - until expiry of the absolute limitation period for criminal prosecution for the criminal offence for which the traces and items were taken;
 - 24) fingerprints and other data on forensic examinations and analyses - five years from the date of data processing;
 - 25) access to information and communication systems - five years from the date of access to the system;
 - 26) data in voice recording systems - at least 30 days from the date of data processing and, depending on system load, longer, but no longer than two years;
 - 27) financial intelligence data - in line with the law governing the prevention of money laundering and financing of terrorism;
 - 28) data in geospatial systems - permanently;
 - 29) acting upon requests of the State Prosecutor's Office and courts - five years from the date of acting upon the request;
 - 30) insignia referred to in Article 52 paragraph 6 of this Law - five years from the date of assignment.

Upon expiry of the periods referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, except the period for data in records on secured traces and items that may serve as evidence in criminal and misdemeanour proceedings and fingerprints and other data on forensic examinations and analyses, the justification for further retention of data for the performance of police affairs shall be reviewed.

Data whose further retention is not justified shall be deleted from the records upon expiry of the prescribed retention period.

Data collected contrary to law or data which are inaccurate shall be deleted or corrected immediately.

Personal data shall be deleted from the records in respect of a person acquitted of criminal liability for a particular criminal offence by a final court decision and a person in respect of whom a final judgment dismissing the charges has been rendered or criminal proceedings for a particular criminal offence have been discontinued.

Form, content and manner of keeping records and retaining and deleting data referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, except the records referred to in item 22 of this Article, other records established by this Law and manner of accessing blocked data referred to in Article 66 of this Law shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Right of Access to Data Article 65

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 040/26 as of 23 March 2026, Article 2)

Data subject shall have the right of access to the data referred to in Article 64 paragraph 1 of this Law in the following records:

- referred to in items 1 and 2, after the indictment becomes final, upon submission of an indictment proposal or on the date of initiation of misdemeanour proceedings;
- referred to in items 3, 4, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 23, 24, 25 and 30, when the reasons requiring collection of data on that person cease to exist;
- referred to in items 5, 10 and 16 to 21, when the reasons requiring collection of data cease to exist;
- referred to in items 6, 14 and 15, after archiving of the information or data; and
- referred to in item 7, after the decision suspending the investigation becomes final or on the date the indictment against that person becomes final.

Right of access to data in the manner referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article may be restricted for the purpose of:

- preventing interference with proceedings;
- preventing disclosure of an investigation or prosecution for criminal offences or enforcement of criminal sanctions;
- protecting internal security;
- protecting the security of certain persons, facilities and areas referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law; and
- protecting the rights and freedoms of others.

Person to whom the data relate shall be provided with written reasons for the restriction referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, unless this would jeopardise prevention, detection or clarification of a criminal offence or misdemeanour.

Person in respect of whom data were collected without consent and were not deleted from the records within the prescribed period shall be informed thereof where permitted by the nature of police work.

Blocking of Data Article 66

Where the retention period expires for data in records on secured traces and items that may serve as evidence in criminal and misdemeanour proceedings and fingerprints and other data on forensic examinations and analyses, data in those records shall be blocked.

Following blocking referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, data shall be retained for:

- ten years for criminal offences for which imprisonment of up to one year is prescribed;
- 30 years for criminal offences for which imprisonment of up to eight years may be

- imposed; and
- 50 years for criminal offences for which imprisonment of more than eight years may be imposed.

Police officers and competent state authorities shall be allowed access to blocked data only for the purposes of a criminal investigation into a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or in other cases concerning protection of national security or the constitutional order, where necessary for the exercise of powers prescribed by law.

Upon expiry of the deadlines referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, blocked data shall be deleted.

Provision of Data

Article 67

Ministry may provide data from the records referred to in Article 64 paragraph 1 of this Law for use by state authorities, state administration authorities, local self-government authorities, local administration authorities and other legal persons exercising public powers, in line with the law governing personal data protection, where necessary for the exercise of powers prescribed by law and where such data cannot be obtained otherwise or their obtaining would require disproportionately high costs.

Data from the records referred to in Article 64 paragraph 1 of this Law for which no restriction is prescribed by law shall also be provided by the Ministry for use upon requests of entities supervising and controlling the work of the Police for the purpose of performing affairs within their competence, in line with this Law.

International Data Exchange

Article 68

Ministry and the Police may, where necessary for performing tasks within their remit, exchange data on their own initiative or at the request of foreign states or international organisations, subject to reciprocity.

Personal data may be exchanged only where prior guarantees exist that a foreign state or international organisation using such data applies adequate personal data protection measures prescribed by a separate law governing personal data protection and will use the data for the purpose prescribed by this Law.

Data obtained from another state may be provided to a third state only with the consent of the state from which they were obtained.

Ministry and the Police shall keep records of the exchange of data referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, containing data on when and to whom data were provided and for what purpose.

Notwithstanding paragraph 4 of this Article, records of international exchange of financial intelligence data shall be kept by the financial intelligence unit, in line with the law governing the prevention of money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Appropriate Application

Article 69

Regulations governing personal data protection shall apply accordingly to the processing of personal data by the Ministry or the Police, unless otherwise prescribed by this Law.

3. Verifying and Determining the Identity of Persons and Identification of Items

Verifying the Identity of Persons

Article 70

Police officer shall verify the identity of a person:

- 1) who enters a protected facility or area;

- 2) who is to be deprived of liberty, brought in under Article 77 of this Law, detained or referred to the competent authorities;
- 3) who is dangerous to other persons or property;
- 4) who reports a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or a misdemeanour, reports the perpetrators of those offences or provides information concerning such criminal offences or misdemeanours;
- 5) who is subject to an examination or a search pursuant to a court order or in respect of whom another action prescribed by law is undertaken;
- 6) who is found in another person's apartment or other premises or in a means of transport subject to examination or search, where identity verification is necessary;
- 7) who is found in an area or facility where freedom of movement has been temporarily restricted, where identity verification is necessary;
- 8) whose identity must be verified for security reasons;
- 9) who, without justified reason, collects data on a person, facility or area where a person protected by the Police is located;
- 10) who may provide data useful for the performance of police affairs;
- 11) whose conduct, actions or presence at a particular place or time give grounds for suspicion that they are a minor who has run away from home or an educational institution or is lost;
- 12) who is obviously helpless and whose identity must be verified for the purpose of providing assistance;
- 13) at the reasoned request of an official person within the meaning of the Criminal Code of Montenegro;
- 14) whose conduct, actions or presence at a particular place give grounds for suspicion that they pose a threat to security and public order and peace.

Reasoned request referred to in paragraph 1 item 13 of this Article shall mean a request from which it may be established that data on the identity of a person are necessary for lawful action by an official person.

At the request of the person whose identity is being verified, a police officer shall inform that person of the reason for identity verification, unless otherwise prescribed by law.

Notwithstanding paragraph 3 of this Article, a police officer may refuse to inform a person of the reasons for identity verification where this would prevent or significantly hinder the exercise of police powers prescribed by law.

Manner of Verifying the Identity of a Person Article 71

Identity of a person referred to in Article 70 of this Law shall be verified by examining their identity card or another public document bearing a photograph or electronically where the identity card or other public document contains an electronic identification certificate.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, identity may also be verified on the basis of a statement by another person whose identity has already been verified or determined.

Police officer may verify the identity of a person without that person's knowledge where clearly justified reasons exist.

Determining the Identity of a Person Article 72

Where the identity of a person cannot be verified in line with Article 71 of this Law, the authenticity of an identity card or another public document bearing a photograph is doubtful or it is necessary to determine the identity of a person in respect of whom information exists that they are planning or preparing to commit a criminal offence or misdemeanour, identity may also be determined using data from records kept by the Ministry or the Police, methods and means of criminal investigation tactics and techniques, forensic, medical or other appropriate expert examinations and international police cooperation, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law.

Where the identity of a person cannot be determined in the manner referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the Police shall be authorised, for the purpose of determining their identity, to publish a photograph, facial composite, drawing, recording or description of that person, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law.

Police shall be authorised, for the purpose of determining the identity of a person and where circumstances so warrant, to publish a photograph of a missing person, a person who cannot or refuses to provide accurate information about themselves or the body of an unidentified person.

Identification of Items

Article 73

Police officer shall undertake the necessary measures and actions to identify an item where there are grounds for suspicion that the item was acquired or generated in connection with the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour or was used to commit a criminal offence or misdemeanour.

Police officer shall identify an item by establishing and verifying its features and characteristics and establishing and verifying the connection between persons or events and the item.

Police may publish a photograph, drawing, recording or description of an item where this is important for its successful identification.

4. Summoning

Conditions and Manner of Summoning for an Interview

Article 74

Police may summon for an interview a person who is likely to have information necessary for the performance of police affairs.

Summons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall contain the reason for summoning, name, location and address of the organisational unit of the Police to which the person is summoned, time of arrival and the right of the person to attend the interview with a lawyer.

Where the person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article comes to the Police premises with a lawyer, the lawyer shall be allowed to attend the interview.

Person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be informed that they are not required to provide data.

Person who fails to respond to a summons may be forcibly brought in only where warned thereof in the summons.

Time Period in which a Person May be Summoned for an Interview

Article 75

Person may be summoned for an interview in the period from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, for the purpose of performing police affairs that cannot be delayed, a police officer may summon a person for an interview outside the time specified in that paragraph.

Special Cases of Summoning for an Interview

Article 76

Police officer may also summon a person for an interview by telephone or another appropriate means of electronic communication, in which case the police officer shall state the reasons for summoning, warn the person that they may be forcibly brought in if they fail to respond to the summons and, with the consent of the person, may bring them to Police premises.

Person may also be summoned for an interview through the media and other means of public information, as well as through electronic communications networks, where necessary for the performance of police affairs that cannot be delayed or where the summons is intended for a large number of persons.

Upon request of a person who responded to a summons for an interview, a certificate stating the reasons, time and place of the interview and explaining the manner of summoning shall be issued.

5. Bringing in and Temporary Restriction on the Freedom of Movement

Bringing in Article 77

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 084/24 as of 6 September 2024, Article 1)

Police officer shall be authorised to bring in:

- 1) a person whose identity must be verified in line with Article 70 of this Law or determined in line with Article 72 of this Law;
- 2) a person for the purpose of collecting information in relation to clarifying criminal offences and misdemeanours, where a summons would cause a delay that would jeopardise the performance of police affairs;
- 3) a person referred to in Article 74 paragraph 5 of this Law;
- 4) a person who is sought;
- 5) a person in whose possession items have been found which they are not permitted to possess or items suitable for committing misdemeanours or criminal offences;
- 6) a person found at the scene of a criminal offence or misdemeanour where this is necessary for the performance of police affairs that cannot be delayed; or
- 7) upon an order of a court or State Prosecutor.

Person shall be brought to Police premises between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m.

Notwithstanding paragraph 2 of this Article, where bringing in is necessary for the performance of police affairs that cannot be delayed, a person may also be brought in outside the period referred to in that paragraph.

Bringing in a person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article may commence no earlier than three hours before the specified time for bringing in where it is to be carried out within the territory of the municipality for which the organisational unit of the Police has been established and where the person is located or found.

Where the person to be brought in is located or found outside the territory of the municipality for which the organisational unit of the Police has been established, bringing in may last no longer than six hours, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law.

Persons Exempted from the Application of Provisions on Bringing in Article 78

Provisions of Article 77 of this Law shall not apply to bringing in of a person:

- 1) where it may reasonably be assumed that bringing in would significantly worsen their health condition; or
- 2) who is performing tasks that must not be interrupted until a suitable replacement is provided.

Police officer carrying out the bringing in shall inform the immediate superior without delay of the facts referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Rights of Person Brought in Article 79

Police officer shall, prior to bringing in a person, inform that person of the reasons for bringing in and of their rights, in their language or in a language they understand: to notify a family member or a trusted third party of the bringing in or, where the person is a foreigner, the diplomatic or consular representative of the person's country of citizenship or, where the person is stateless or a migrant, a representative of the relevant international organisation; to a lawyer of their own choice from the moment of bringing in; and to an examination by a doctor of their own choice.

Where there is a possibility that a person to be brought in will resist, bringing in may be carried out without prior notification of the reasons.

Where there is suspicion that a person to be brought in possesses a weapon or implement suitable for attack or that the person will discard, conceal or destroy items to be seized as evidence in criminal or misdemeanour proceedings, a police officer shall conduct an examination in line with Article 91 of this Law.

Before bringing in a person who cares for or is the guardian of minors or other persons, a police officer shall inform the authority responsible for social and child protection where relatives or neighbours are unable to care for those persons.

Police officer shall immediately inform a parent, legal guardian, person to whom a child or minor has been entrusted for care, a trusted third person or the authority responsible for social and child protection of the bringing in of a minor.

Temporary Restriction of Freedom of Movement Article 80

Police officer may temporarily restrict access or movement in a particular area or facility:

- 1) where there is danger to the life or health of persons or to property;
- 2) to prevent the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour;
- 3) for the purpose of locating and apprehending perpetrators of a criminal offence or misdemeanour;
- 4) for the purpose of locating traces and items that may serve as evidence that a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or a misdemeanour punishable by imprisonment has been committed;
- 5) where it is necessary to verify the identity of a person in line with Article 70 of this Law pending the bringing in referred to in Article 77 of this Law; or
- 6) for the purpose of protecting persons, facilities or areas under protection.

Temporary restriction of freedom of movement during access to or movement within a particular area may last only until achievement of the objective for which the power is exercised and no longer than 12 hours, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law.

Temporary restriction of freedom of movement when leaving a facility may last only until achievement of the objective for which the power is exercised and no longer than six hours, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law.

Where circumstances permit, a police officer shall inform the person in respect of whom the actions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article are undertaken of the reasons for undertaking those actions.

Criminal Investigation Tactical Actions for Exercising the Power to Temporarily Restrict Freedom of Movement Article 81

Temporary restriction of freedom of movement may be carried out by applying criminal investigation tactical actions (blockade, raid, pursuit, ambush and examination of certain facilities and areas).

6. Giving Warnings and Issuing Orders

Giving Warnings Article 82

Police officer shall give a warning to the person likely to:

- 1) whose conduct, action or omission may endanger their own safety or the safety of another person or property, endanger road traffic safety, disturb public order and peace or border control, endanger or disturb the security of persons, facilities and areas referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law or obstruct police officers performing duties of direct protection of those persons, facilities and areas; or
- 2) who may commit, encourage or incite another person to commit a criminal offence or misdemeanour.

Issuing Orders Article 83

Order may be issued only in relation to conduct, activities, acts or omissions on which the successful performance of police affairs and tasks or the exercise of police powers, measures and actions directly depends, for the purpose of:

- 1) eliminate the threat to life, health and freedom of persons and to property;
- 2) preventing the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour, apprehending the perpetrator of that criminal offence or misdemeanour and locating and securing traces of a criminal offence or misdemeanour that may serve as evidence in criminal or misdemeanour proceedings;
- 3) maintaining or restoring disturbed public order and peace;
- 4) ensuring road traffic safety;
- 5) enabling unobstructed border control;
- 6) preventing access to a person, facility or area referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law;
- 7) preventing access to and presence in an area or facility where this is not permitted by law;
- 8) preventing access to and presence in an area or facility where this is not permitted for security reasons on the basis of an assessment by a police officer;
- 9) preventing the occurrence and eliminating the consequences of a general danger; and
- 10) in other cases prescribed by law.

Order referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article may also be issued to a group comprising more than three persons.

Manner of Giving Warnings and Issuing Orders Article 84

Warnings and orders shall be given orally, in writing, by light and sound signals, signs, hand signals or in another manner prescribed by the act referred to in Article 124 of this Law.

7. Use of Another Person's Means of Transport or Means of Communication and Determining the Presence of Alcohol and/or Psychoactive Substances in the Body

Use of Another Person's Means of Transport or Means of Communication Article 85

Another person's means of transport or means of communication may be used where transport or communication cannot otherwise be provided for the purpose of:

- 1) preventing the commission of a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or apprehending a perpetrator of a criminal offence who is being immediately pursued, where those actions cannot otherwise be undertaken; and
- 2) transporting an injured person who is a victim of a criminal offence, traffic accident, natural disaster or other accident to the nearest health care institution.

Owner of the means of transport or means of communication used in line with paragraph 1 of this Article shall be entitled to reimbursement of costs and compensation for actual damage caused by such use.

Determining the Presence of Alcohol and/or Psychoactive Substances in the Body Article 86

For the purpose of determining the presence of alcohol and/or psychoactive substances in the body, a police officer may test a person using appropriate means where necessary for the performance of a police affair.

Where testing referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article cannot be carried out for clearly justified reasons, a police officer may bring the person to the nearest health care institution for a blood sample or blood and urine samples to be taken for the purpose of determining the presence of alcohol and/or psychoactive substances in the body.

Person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall immediately comply with the order of the police officer and undergo testing using appropriate means or provide a blood sample or blood and urine samples.

Data collected in line with paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article shall constitute a special category of personal data and may be processed only in line with the law governing personal data protection.

8. Temporary Seizure, Storage and Destruction of Items, Searching for Persons and Items, Stopping and Examination of Persons and Items, Public Promise of Reward and Recording in a Public Place

Conditions for Temporary Seizure of Items Article 87

Police officer shall temporarily seize an item for the purpose of preventing the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour where:

- 1) the circumstances of the case and the nature and characteristics of the item indicate that the item resulted from the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour or was intended for committing a criminal offence or misdemeanour;
- 2) this is necessary to protect persons and property;
- 3) the item may be used for self-harm, attack, escape, concealment or destruction of evidence that a misdemeanour has been committed; or
- 4) due to particular circumstances, shape, characteristics and type of material from which it is made, the item is suitable and may be used in a manner that would disturb public order and peace, insult or disturb another person or compromise security in a facility or area under protection.

Certificate of Temporary Seizure of Items

Article 88

Police officer shall issue a certificate of temporary seizure of an item in the prescribed form.

Certificate referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall contain data on the police officer who temporarily seized the item, distinguishing data on the temporarily seized item and data on the person from whom the item was seized.

Storage and Destruction of Temporarily Seized Items

Article 89

Where storage of temporarily seized items at Police premises is impossible or significantly impeded, such items may be stored in other premises or placed or secured in another appropriate manner pending a decision of the competent authority, unless otherwise prescribed by law.

Under the conditions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, where temporarily seized items have been entrusted to or are stored by the Police, storage costs shall be borne by the person from whom the item was temporarily seized.

Temporarily seized item shall be returned to the person from whom it was seized or its lawful owner when the reasons for seizure cease to exist, unless otherwise prescribed by law.

Person referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article shall be summoned to take over the temporarily seized item within a period not exceeding 30 days from the date on which the reasons for seizure ceased to exist.

Where a temporarily seized item is not returned in line with paragraph 3 of this Article, the person from whom it was seized shall have the right to submit a complaint within the meaning of Article 32 of this Law.

Temporarily seized unexploded ordnance, mines and explosive ordnance, improvised explosive devices and other devices endangering life and health shall, after forensic processing and expert examination, be destroyed without delay with the assistance of the competent authorities, in the prescribed manner.

Before destruction of the items referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article, consent of the competent state prosecutor or other competent authority shall be obtained and, after destruction, a record shall be drafted.

Detailed manner of seizure, storage and management of temporarily seized items, as well as detailed content and form of the certificate of temporary seizure of items, shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Search for Persons and Items

Article 90

Immediately upon learning of the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour or the disappearance of a person, the Police shall undertake measures to search for persons and items.

Search for persons or items shall be initiated by a wanted notice, search notice or public announcement.

Wanted notice shall be issued in line with the law governing criminal proceedings and another law.

Search notice may be issued:

- 1) for a person for whom grounds for suspicion exist that the person has committed a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or a misdemeanour;
- 2) for a person at the request of a competent authority or institution submitted in line with a separate law;
- 3) at the request of the legal representative of a person who has run away from home

- and in other cases, in line with separate regulations; or
- 4) for a person who can provide the necessary notification about a committed criminal offence or misdemeanour, the perpetrator or the items of the criminal offence or misdemeanour.

Announcement may be issued:

- 1) for a missing person;
- 2) for the purpose of determining the identity of a person unable to provide personal data or determining the identity of the body of an unidentified person;
- 3) for items related to a criminal offence or misdemeanour, for items for which the Police are obliged to search in line with the law, as well as for items that have been found or are missing;
- 4) for the purpose of determining the place of residence and place of stay of a person, in line with a separate law; and
- 5) in other cases prescribed by law.

Where the disappearance of a person has been reported and there are grounds for suspicion that the person is a victim of a criminal offence, police officers shall immediately undertake measures and actions prescribed by this Law and other laws, in cooperation with other competent authorities, citizens' associations and citizens, to locate the person.

Stopping and Examination of Persons, Items and Means of Transport

Article 91

Police officer shall be authorised to stop and examine persons, items carried by a person and means of transport where such actions are necessary:

- 1) to protect persons and property;
- 2) to prevent and detect criminal offences and misdemeanours;
- 3) to prevent the escape of a perpetrator of a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or a misdemeanour;
- 4) to locate items suitable for attack or self-harm;
- 5) to locate wanted persons and items;
- 6) to bring in persons; or
- 7) to protect persons, facilities and areas referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law.

When stopping a person, a police officer shall, before conducting the examination referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, inform the person that they have been stopped for the purpose of examination and of the reasons for stopping and conducting the examination. Examination of a person referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall comprise of an external examination of clothing and footwear and items carried by the person.

Examination of items carried by a person shall comprise of examination of items carried by the person or located in their immediate vicinity.

Examination of a means of transport shall comprise of examination of all open and closed spaces of the means of transport and items being transported.

Police officer may examine persons, items and means of transport visually and by exercising other police powers, measures and actions.

Examination of a person shall be performed by a person of the same sex, except where an urgent examination is necessary for the purpose of seizing a weapon or items suitable for attack or self-harm.

Where, during examination of persons, items or means of transport, a police officer establishes that a search is necessary due to the circumstances, the police officer shall conduct the search in line with law.

In the case referred to in paragraph 8 of this Article, a police officer shall be authorised to temporarily restrict the freedom of movement of a person in line with Article 80 paragraph 2 of this Law pending receipt of a search warrant.

Public Promise of Reward

Article 92

Ministry may, upon proposal of the Police, publicly promise a reward for information provided where information from citizens is necessary for the performance of police affairs.

Public promise of a reward may be published in the media, through means of public information and communication or in another appropriate manner.

Ministry shall publicly revoke the promised reward once it obtains the requested information.

Person who provided information for which a reward was promised shall not be entitled to the reward where the Police already possessed that information.

Police officers, members of their immediate family and accomplices in the commission of a criminal offence or misdemeanour who provided the information shall not be entitled to the reward.

Immediate family within the meaning of paragraph 5 of this Article shall comprise of a parent, adoptive parent, guardian, spouse, children (children born in or out of marriage, adopted children and stepchildren), brother and sister.

Recording in Public Places

Article 93

Ministry shall perform affairs relating to the design, establishment, management, development and maintenance of video surveillance of public areas.

For the purpose of performing police affairs, the Police shall monitor and record public places using video and audio recording and photographic equipment.

Where there is a danger that a public gathering or public event may endanger the life or health of persons or property, a police officer shall be authorised, for the purpose of exercising police powers, detecting criminal offences and misdemeanours and controlling and analysing the performance of police affairs, to record or photograph the public gathering or public event.

For the purpose of achieving the objectives referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Article, the Police may use vehicles, vessels, aircraft and other means equipped with recording devices, with or without external Police markings, as well as devices for recording and recognising registration plates, persons and items.

Notice of the intention to record referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article, except in respect of unannounced public gatherings and recording as a secret surveillance measure in line with the law governing criminal proceedings, shall be published in the media and on the Ministry website no later than 24 hours before recording begins.

Notice of the intention to record referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article shall be submitted in writing to the organiser of the public gathering or public event.

Where data collected in line with paragraph 2 of this Article are not necessary for the purpose of prosecuting persons on grounds of reasonable suspicion that a criminal offence or misdemeanour has been committed, they shall be deleted no later than 30 days from the date of their creation.

Ministry shall keep records of data obtained through use of video surveillance of public areas, in line with this Law.

9. Use of the Means of Coercion

Types of Means of Coercion and Conditions for Use

Article 94

Means of coercion within the meaning of this Law shall comprise of:

- 1) physical force;

- 2) Manual Spray with Irritant Effects;
- 3) electroshock weapon;
- 4) service truncheon;
- 5) instruments of restraint;
- 6) special vehicles;
- 7) service dogs;
- 8) service horses;
- 9) special motor vehicles;
- 10) means for blocking;
- 11) devices for ejecting jets of water;
- 12) chemical means;
- 13) means for special purposes; and
- 14) firearms.

Means referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be used where necessary to protect the safety of persons, repel an attack and prevent escape, where an official task cannot be performed by giving a warning or issuing an order.

Police officer shall use means of coercion only where the task cannot be performed otherwise, in proportion to the danger threatening a legally protected good and value or to the gravity of the act being prevented or suppressed.

Police officer shall always use the mildest means of coercion that achieves the objective, in proportion to the reason for its use and in a manner that enables the official task to be performed without unnecessary harmful consequences.

Before using means of coercion, a police officer shall warn the person against whom the means is intended to be used.

Notwithstanding paragraph 5 of this Article, means of coercion may also be used without prior warning where such warning could jeopardise achievement of the objective in the performance of police affairs.

When using means of coercion, a police officer shall protect human life, cause the least possible injury and material damage and ensure that assistance is provided as soon as possible to an injured person or a person in danger and that their family or other relatives are informed thereof as soon as possible.

Use of Means of Coercion against a Group of Persons

Article 95

Police officer shall be authorised to order a group of three or more persons to disperse where the group has unlawfully gathered, behaves unlawfully, may provoke or has provoked violence or violence has already occurred.

Should the group of persons referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article fail to disperse, a police officer may use the means of coercion referred to in Article 94 paragraph 1 items 1 to 12 and Article 112 paragraph 3 items 1 and 2 of this Law.

In the case of a public gathering or public event within the meaning of the law governing public gatherings of citizens and public and sports events, means of coercion shall be used against persons who have unlawfully gathered, behave unlawfully and may thereby provoke violence or where violence has already occurred, only upon the order of the immediate superior.

Means referred to in Articles 103, 111 and 112 of this Law may be used to restore disturbed public order and peace during public gatherings referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article only with the approval of the Police Director.

Reporting, Control and Accountability Regarding the Use of Means of Coercion

Article 96

Police officer who used and/or ordered the use of a means of coercion or participated in the use of means of coercion shall, independently and without consulting other participants in the event, submit a written report to the immediate superior without delay and no later than 24 hours from the use of the means of coercion.

When a police officer uses and/or orders the use of a means of coercion or participates in the use of means of coercion while securing public gatherings or public events or while providing assistance to another organisational unit of the Police, the police officer shall, independently and without consulting other participants in the event, submit a written report to the head responsible for securing the public gathering or public event or to the head of the organisational unit of the Police to which assistance is provided, without delay and no later than 24 hours from the use of the means of coercion.

Immediate superior or the head referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article shall, without delay, collect information on the circumstances of the use of means of coercion and provide an opinion on the justification and regularity of their use, which, together with the report of the police officer referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article, shall be submitted to the Police Director or a person authorised by the Police Director within 48 hours from the use of the means of coercion.

Report referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article shall state: the place, date and time of use of the means of coercion; name, surname and unique personal identification number, citizenship or date of birth of the person against whom the means of coercion was used and the type and number of the document in the case of a foreign national; name, surname and unique personal identification number of a person present during the use of the means of coercion; type of means of coercion used; name and surname of the police officer who used or ordered the use of the means of coercion; reason for the use of the means of coercion; circumstances in which the means of coercion was used; possible consequences of its use; legal basis and manner of use; other data where means of coercion were used against a group of persons and other facts and circumstances necessary for assessing the justification, regularity and lawfulness of the use of means of coercion.

Lawfulness of the use of means of coercion shall be assessed by the Police Director or a person authorised by the Police Director without delay and no later than three days from the date of receipt of the report together with the case file.

Should the Police Director or a person authorised by the Police Director assess that means of coercion were used unlawfully, they shall undertake measures to determine the liability of the police officer who used or ordered the use of the means of coercion no later than five days from the date of the assessment of lawfulness.

Notwithstanding paragraph 5 of this Article, the Minister or a person authorised by the Minister shall establish a commission to assess the circumstances in which means of coercion were used where:

- 1) a police officer used a firearm;
- 2) serious bodily injury or death of a person resulted from the use of means of coercion; or
- 3) means of coercion were used against a group of persons.

Commission referred to in paragraph 7 of this Article shall be established within three days from the date of use of the means of coercion and shall comprise of two police officers holding the highest police rank, one representative of the Ministry and one representative of the representative trade union of the Police.

Commission referred to in paragraph 7 of this Article shall determine the circumstances in which the means of coercion was used by collecting data in line with law and shall draft a record thereon within the shortest possible period.

Regarding the lawfulness of the use of means of coercion, the commission referred to in paragraph 7 of this Article shall draft an opinion on the circumstances justifying the use of means of coercion and submit it to the Minister or a person authorised by the Minister within the shortest possible period.

Should the opinion referred to in paragraph 10 of this Article contain an assessment that means of coercion were used unlawfully, the Minister or a person authorised by the Minister shall act in line with paragraph 5 of this Article.

Police officer who used or ordered the use of means of coercion shall be liable for unlawful use of means of coercion within the meaning of paragraphs 5 and 10 of this Article.

Police officer who failed to attempt to prevent unlawful use of means of coercion despite being in a position to do so shall also be liable in the event of unlawful use of means of coercion.

Opinion of the commission on the use of means of coercion referred to in paragraph 7 item 2 of this Article shall be submitted to the state prosecutor for assessment.

Legal Assistance Regarding the Use of Means of Coercion

Article 97

Where it is assessed in line with Article 96 of this Law that means of coercion were used in line with law, the police officer shall not be liable for their use.

Where court proceedings are conducted against a police officer for use of means of coercion referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article or for undertaking other actions in the performance of police affairs, the Ministry shall provide legal assistance and bear the costs of those proceedings.

Physical Force

Article 98

Use of physical force within the meaning of this Law shall comprise of martial arts holds or similar actions applied to the body of another person for the purpose of repelling an attack, overcoming resistance, preventing self-harm or preventing a person from arbitrarily leaving in cases prescribed by law, while causing the least harmful consequences.

Manual Spray with Irritant Effects

Article 99

Manual Spray with Irritant Effects may be used where the conditions for use of physical force have been met, except where overcoming passive resistance.

Manual Spray with Irritant Effects may be used to repel an attack or overcome active resistance of a person.

Use of Manual Spray with Irritant Effects within the meaning of this Law shall comprise of the use of aerosol canisters filled with a chemical substance having a milder effect than tear gas, intended for temporary incapacitation and leaving no permanent consequences for human health after use.

Electroshock Weapon

Article 100

Electroshock weapon may be used where the conditions for use of physical force and Manual Spray with Irritant Effects have been met, except where overcoming passive resistance.

Electroshock weapon emitting a short-term electro-magnetic impulse may be used in order to repel an attack or overcome active resistance of a person.

Service Truncheon

Article 101

Service truncheon may be used where milder means of physical force or Manual Spray with Irritant Effects have proved unsuccessful or do not ensure successful performance of an official task.

Use of a service truncheon shall comprise of striking blows or applying holds to the body of a person.

Blows with a service truncheon shall not be delivered to the head, neck or genital area, except as a last resort.

Against persons under 14 years of age, obviously ill, elderly and infirm persons, persons with disabilities, persons with significantly reduced mobility and women whose pregnancy is visible, a service truncheon may be used only where any such person uses a firearm, implement or other dangerous item or means to endanger their own life, the life of a police officer or the life of another person.

Types, design and detailed characteristics of the service truncheon shall be prescribed by the Ministry.

Instruments of Restraint

Article 102

Instruments of restraint may be used to:

- 1) prevent resistance by a person or repel an attack directed against a police officer;
- 2) prevent the escape of a person; or
- 3) prevent self-harm or injury to another person.

Police officer shall, as a rule, restrain a person being brought in.

Use of instruments of restraint shall comprise of tying, as a rule, a person's hands behind their back.

Instruments of restraint shall comprise of service handcuffs, plastic restraints and other means suitable for that purpose.

When instruments of restraint are used, the restrictions referred to in Article 101 paragraph 4 of this Law shall apply.

Use of instruments of restraint on a person who has already been lawfully deprived of liberty on any grounds shall not be considered use of means of coercion within the meaning of this Law.

Special Vehicles

Article 103

Special vehicles within the meaning of this Law shall comprise of vehicles for ejecting water under pressure, armoured vehicles with or without a built-in barrier, aircraft (helicopters, unmanned aerial vehicles, etc.), vehicles for removing obstacles and other special-purpose vehicles.

Special vehicles may be used to prevent the commission of criminal offences, restore disturbed public order and peace, block passage of persons and use chemical substances and firearms installed in those vehicles.

Use of special vehicles shall comprise of ejecting water under pressure with or without chemical substances, ejecting marking paint, using installed firearms, removing obstacles and blocking passage of persons with special vehicles and using other special-purpose vehicles and aircraft where used for the purposes referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article. Installed chemical substances and firearms referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article may be used only under the conditions prescribed by this Law for the use of those means or firearms.

Service Dogs

Article 104

Service dog shall be a specially trained dog which may be used with a protective muzzle and on a leash as a means of coercion where the conditions for use of physical force, Manual Spray with Irritant Effects, an electroshock weapon and a service truncheon have been met.

Service dog with a protective muzzle and without a leash may be used as a means of coercion:

- to prevent the escape and apprehend a person who has committed a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio;
- to prevent the escape of a person acting contrary to regulations governing state border surveillance;
- to repel an attack on a facility or area under protection;
- to restore disturbed public order and peace.

Service dog without a protective muzzle and without a leash may be used as a means of coercion:

- to restore public order and peace disturbed on a large scale;
- to prevent action by a group of persons endangering the life of a police officer or the safety of persons or property of substantial value; or
- where the conditions for use of firearms have been met.

Use of service dogs shall comprise of releasing a service dog towards a person and blocking passage of persons by using service dogs.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, specially trained service dogs may also be used when performing other police affairs.

Service Horses Article 105

Service horses may be used as a means of coercion to restore disturbed public order and peace and block passage of persons where the conditions for use of physical force, Manual Spray with Irritant Effects, an electroshock weapon and a service truncheon have been met.

Use of a service horse shall comprise of police officers moving on horseback towards persons for the purpose of separating or pushing them back or blocking passage of persons with service horses.

Special Motor Vehicles Article 106

When protecting persons referred to in Article 18 paragraph 1 item 9 of this Law, special motor vehicles may be used as means of coercion if by using other means of coercion it is not possible to protect the life of those persons.

Special motor vehicles within the meaning of paragraph 1 of this Article shall comprise of vehicles accompanying a protected person.

Means for Blocking Article 107

Means for blocking shall comprise of means for forcibly stopping vehicles and means for blocking passage of persons.

Police officers shall secure means for blocking while they are in use.

Means for Forced Stopping of Vehicles Article 108

Means for forced stopping of vehicles referred to in Article 107 paragraph 1 of this Law may be used to prevent:

- 1) the escape of a person found committing a criminal offence or misdemeanour;
- 2) the escape of a person deprived of liberty or in respect of whom an order for deprivation of liberty has been issued;
- 3) illegal crossing of the state border by vehicle;

- 4) unauthorised access by vehicle to a facility or area where persons protected by the Police are located or to protected facilities and areas; or
- 5) further driving by a person who was previously stopped and failed to comply with an order of a police officer.

Means for forced stopping of vehicles shall comprise of devices, spike strips and other means by which a moving vehicle may be forcibly stopped.

In addition to the means referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, for the purpose of forcibly stopping a vehicle in order to prevent the commission of a criminal offence or the escape of the perpetrator of a criminal offence in that vehicle, a police officer may use a service motor vehicle in a manner that does not endanger the lives of persons in the means of transport being forcibly stopped or of other persons.

In front of means for forced stopping of vehicles that have been installed, at an appropriate distance in line with road traffic safety regulations, traffic signs prohibiting overtaking and requiring a mandatory stop shall be placed where possible in the specific situation.

Means for Blocking Passage of Persons

Article 109

Means for blocking passage of persons referred to in Article 107 paragraph 1 of this Law may be used for cordoning off and dividing an area when maintaining public order and peace and securing public gatherings, for blocking a particular facility or area or for restricting, prohibiting or directing the movement of persons in public places, particular areas or routes.

Means for blocking passage of persons shall comprise of barriers, special vehicles, service dogs, service horses and other purpose-built means by which passage of persons may be prevented.

Devices for Ejecting Jets of Water

Article 110

Devices for ejecting jets of water and marking paint may be used against a group of persons whose conduct may provoke violence only under the conditions and in the manner referred to in Article 95 of this Law.

Chemical Means

Article 111

Chemical means may be used to repel an attack and overcome resistance where this cannot be achieved by using physical force, Manual Spray with Irritant Effects, an electroshock weapon or a service truncheon, to restore disturbed public order and peace, clear persons from an enclosed space, resolve hostage situations and where the conditions prescribed by this Law for the use of means for special purposes or firearms have been met.

Chemical means, within the meaning of this Law, shall comprise of various specially constructed means filled with non-lethal chemical substances for temporary, short-term incapacitation, purpose-designed and structurally adapted for use in performing more complex police affairs and tasks, permitted under the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on their Destruction and neither used as a method of warfare nor treated as chemical weapons. In enclosed spaces, chemical means may be used only to overcome resistance of a person who has hidden or barricaded themselves, threatens or resists by using a firearm, dangerous implement or other dangerous item.

When chemical means are used near institutions accommodating children and elderly persons, hospitals, primary schools, busy roads and highly flammable materials, special measures shall also be undertaken to protect and assist persons (presence of emergency medical service, fire service, etc.).

Chemical means may not be used against persons located near explosive substances or flammable liquids and gases, at high altitude or in similar places where human life could be endangered.

Means for Special Purposes Article 112

Means for special purposes may be used to repel an attack and overcome resistance where this cannot be achieved by using other means of coercion, to restore disturbed public order and peace, compel a person to leave an enclosed space and where the conditions for the use of firearms prescribed by this Law have been met.

Means for special purposes may not be used to overcome passive resistance.

Means for special purposes, within the meaning of this Law, shall comprise of:

- 1) acoustic-optical means for temporary incapacitation, namely bombs producing sound, light, smoke or a combination of those effects, as well as shock ammunition, flash grenades and stun grenades;
- 2) kinetic means for temporary incapacitation, comprising various types of ammunition for temporary incapacitation without permanent harmful consequences, namely incapacitating bullets, bullets and pellets made of a mixture of natural and synthetic rubber, wood or plastic or kinetic non-penetrating projectiles; and
- 3) explosive devices.

Means for special purposes shall be used on the basis of a written order of the Police Director.

Notwithstanding paragraph 4 of this Article, where delay in the use of means of coercion could pose a risk, means for special purposes may be used on the basis of an oral order of the Police Director, provided that the Police Director shall draft a written order within 24 hours of issuing the oral order.

Firearms Article 113

When performing police affairs, where the objective for which a power is exercised cannot be achieved by using other means of coercion, a police officer may use a firearm only where necessary to protect their own life or the life of another person.

Objective reasons must exist for using a firearm to protect the life of the police officer or another person.

Existence of objective reasons within the meaning of paragraph 2 of this Article shall be assessed from the perspective of an average police officer trained and experienced in the use of firearms and those reasons shall be based on all facts known to the police officer at the time the firearm is used.

In addition to using a firearm against a person, a police officer may use a firearm against an animal, vehicle or item endangering the life of the police officer or another person.

Police officer may draw and hold a firearm whenever the police officer reasonably considers this necessary for the performance of police affairs and official tasks.

Before using a firearm, a police officer shall, where circumstances permit, warn the person against whom the firearm is to be used by shouting an appropriate warning.

Police officer may, outside working hours and with the consent of the Minister or a person authorised by the Minister, perform other work or be a member of a management or supervisory body of educational, scientific, humanitarian or sports associations, work as a lecturer at training courses, professional training and professional conferences and perform work or provide services to a natural or legal person, where the Ministry does not exercise supervision over such persons or where such work is not prohibited by a separate law, does not constitute a conflict of interest or an impediment to the performance of duties or harm the reputation of the Ministry.

Compensation in Case of Death of a Police Officer or Member of the Immediate Family

Article 157

In the event of death of a police officer, the immediate family shall be entitled to one-off financial assistance equal to 12 times the net salary received by the police officer in the last month.

In the event of death of a police officer, the Ministry shall resolve the housing needs of the spouse and children of the police officer in line with the regulation governing the procedure, manner and criteria for resolving the housing needs of civil servants and state employees.

In the event of death of an immediate family member, the police officer shall be entitled to one-off financial assistance in the amount of nine calculation values of the coefficient. Where two or more members of the immediate family are police officers, the right to assistance referred to in paragraph 3 of this Article shall be exercised by only one police officer or the amount of financial assistance shall be divided into equal parts.

Where two or more members of the immediate family of a police officer submit the request referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the amount of one-off financial assistance shall be divided into equal parts.

Immediate family within the meaning of this Article shall comprise of a parent, adoptive parent, guardian, spouse and children (children born in or out of marriage, adopted children and stepchildren).

Funeral Costs of a Police Officer

Article 158

Should a police officer lose their life in or in connection with the performance of police affairs, the Ministry shall bear the funeral costs at the place designated by the family, namely:

- 1) costs of transporting the remains to the place of burial;
- 2) travel expenses for two accompanying persons; and
- 3) costs of funeral equipment and a grave plot, where the family of the police officer does not have one.

In the case referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the family supported by the police officer shall be entitled to one-off financial assistance equal to 24 times the net salary received by the police officer in the last month.

Ministry may enable employment, without an announcement, of the spouse or children of an officer who lost their life, was seriously injured or became seriously ill in or in connection with the performance of internal or police affairs or of a person who lost their life, was seriously injured or became seriously ill while providing assistance in the performance of internal or police affairs, provided that they meet the requirements for the relevant position.

Rights of a Person Providing Assistance to the Police

Article 159

Person who, on their own initiative or at the request of a police officer, provides assistance to the Police or a police officer and is injured or falls ill as a result, causing incapacity for work and who is not insured under regulations governing health insurance and pension and disability insurance, shall, during treatment and in the event of disability or bodily impairment caused by such injury or illness, have the same rights arising from health insurance and pension and disability insurance as a police officer.

Family of a person who loses their life while providing assistance to the Police or a police officer shall be entitled to the financial assistance referred to in Article 157 paragraph 3 of this Law.

Person who suffers damage while providing assistance in the performance of police affairs shall be entitled to compensation for material damage suffered as a result of providing such assistance, in line with law.

Ministry shall be liable for damage caused by that person to third parties while providing assistance in the performance of police affairs, in line with law.

Ministry shall provide legal assistance to a person who provided assistance to the Police or a police officer where criminal or misdemeanour proceedings have been initiated against that person for an act committed in connection with the provision of assistance.

Health Care

Article 160

Ministry shall organise the provision of primary health care, as well as specific health care or particular specific health care measures for employees of the Ministry, in line with the law governing health care.

Police officers and officers of the Ministry shall have the right to psychological assistance within the specific health care referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, in particular police officers who, in or in connection with the performance of internal or police affairs, directly or indirectly participated in a traumatic event or another highly stressful or crisis situation, whereby such assistance may also be provided to members of the immediate family of those persons.

Regulations governing the rights of health care employees shall apply to the rights, obligations and legal status of employees in the organisational unit of the Ministry performing the affairs referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Assessment of General Medical Fitness and Special Psychological and Physical Fitness

Article 161

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 040/26 as of 23 March 2026, Article 19)

Assessment of general medical fitness and special psychological and physical fitness of police officers, during the course of employment, shall be carried out by the Health Commission through regular annual examinations.

Police officer shall undergo the examination referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Upon a reasoned proposal of a medical doctor or the immediate superior, a police officer shall undergo an extraordinary medical examination for the purpose of assessing special psychological and physical fitness.

Health Commission shall draft a report on determination of the special psychological and physical fitness referred to in Article 125 paragraph 1 item 3 of this Law or on assessment of general medical fitness and special psychological and physical fitness referred to in paragraphs 1 and 3 of this Article.

Report referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article shall be submitted to the immediate superior of the police officer, the Police Director and the Ministry.

Chair and members of the Health Commission shall be entitled to remuneration for their work in that commission in an amount of up to 50% of the average net salary in Montenegro in the previous year, according to the data of the authority responsible for statistics, for the month in which the commission is engaged.

Should it be established that a police officer does not meet the prescribed psychological and physical fitness requirements:

- 1) the police officer shall be reassigned to another position in the Police or the Ministry for which the police officer meets the requirements;
- 2) the police officer shall be placed at the disposal of the human resources management authority for the purposes of the internal labour market; or
- 3) the police officer shall be entitled to a disability pension, in line with a separate law.

Should a health care institution become aware that a police officer does not meet the prescribed psychological and physical requirements for performing the duties of the position, it shall inform the Ministry without delay of the identified psychological and physical impediments to the performance of police affairs.

Criteria and manner for determining the special psychological and physical fitness referred to in Article 125 paragraph 1 item 3 of this Law, as well as criteria and manner for assessing general medical fitness and special psychological and physical fitness referred to in paragraphs 1 and 3 of this Article, shall be prescribed by the Ministry, with the consent of the state administration authority responsible for health.

Obligation to Undergo Testing for the Presence of Alcohol and/or Psychoactive Substances

Article 161a

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 040/26 as of 23 March 2026, Article 20)

Police officer shall undergo testing for the presence of alcohol and/or psychoactive substances.

Testing referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be carried out without prior notice, upon the order of the immediate superior, the Police Director, the Minister or a person authorised by the Minister, in line with professional standards and separate regulations.

Testing referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be conducted by analysing a sample of blood, urine, saliva or other relevant biological material in a manner ensuring the reliability and accuracy of the results.

Official note shall be drafted separately for each police officer in respect of testing referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article and shall, together with documentation on the test results or refusal to undergo testing, be submitted to the Minister without delay and no later than 24 hours.

Security Impediments to Further Work

Article 162

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 040/26 as of 23 March 2026, Article 21)

Security impediments to further work in a police rank or to continuation of a traineeship, education, training, special professional training or professional development in line with this Law shall be deemed to exist, in addition to the grounds for termination of employment by operation of law under this Law, where a police officer or a person undergoing a traineeship, education, training, special professional training or professional development:

1) establishes unauthorised contacts with persons of operational interest or members of organised criminal groups contrary to Article 21 paragraph 3 of this Law or maintains links with persons who unlawfully collect classified or other data, terrorists, saboteurs, members of organised criminal groups or persons reasonably suspected of belonging to such groups;

2) fails to obtain security clearance for access to classified data at the Confidential, Secret or Top Secret classification level;

3) is registered in records of narcotic drug users maintained by the state administration authority responsible for health or the presence of psychoactive substances is established during a medical examination;

4) is subject to an order to conduct an investigation or criminal proceedings are initiated for criminal offences with elements of organised crime and corruption or for criminal offences for which a minimum sentence of five years of imprisonment is prescribed; or

5) has disclosed data and information or enabled unauthorised persons to access data and information obtained in the performance of or in connection with the performance of police affairs.

Proposal for determining the existence of a security impediment to further work in a police rank shall be submitted by the immediate superior of the police officer without the prior consent of the police officer in respect of whom the security check is conducted.

Notwithstanding paragraph 2 of this Article, a proposal for determining the existence of security impediments may be submitted by the Assistant Police Director responsible for combating crime.

Verification of the existence of security impediments to further work in a police rank shall be carried out by the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments established by the Minister.

Verification of the existence of security impediments referred to in paragraph 1 item 1 of this Article shall be carried out by the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments by inspecting the relevant records.

In determining the existence of a security impediment referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article, the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments shall, in addition to inspecting the records referred to in Article 64 of this Law and other records prescribed by law and the data held by the organisational unit performing affairs relating to criminal offences prescribed by the law governing the organisation and jurisdiction of the Special State Prosecutor's Office, the organisational unit responsible for combating crime, the organisational unit performing internal control affairs and the organisational unit referred to in Article 183 of this Law, obtain an opinion from the National Security Agency, in line with the law governing national security.

Opinion referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article shall be submitted by the National Security Agency within 90 days.

Should the National Security Agency fail to submit its opinion within the period referred to in paragraph 7 of this Article, the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments shall issue an opinion on the existence or non-existence of a security impediment on the basis of data from the records referred to in Article 64 of this Law and other records referred to in paragraph 6 of this Article.

Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments shall submit its report with an opinion on the existence or non-existence of a security impediment to the Minister, to the Police Director for information and to the immediate superior of the police officer to whom the report relates for further action, within 30 days from completion of the checks.

Minister shall submit the report referred to in paragraph 9 of this Article to the competent committee of the Parliament for information.

Verification of the existence of security impediments to further work in a police rank shall be carried out for all police officers once every five years, according to the annual verification plan adopted by the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments by the end of the current year for the following year, with the consent of the Minister.

Police officer shall be informed of the existence of a security impediment, without an obligation to inform the police officer of the reasons on which the determination of the security impediment is based.

Notification referred to in paragraph 12 of this Article shall inform the police officer of their rights and that, in cases referred to in paragraph 1 items 1 and 2 of this Article, the police officer shall lose the police rank and police powers, while in cases referred to in paragraph 1 items 3, 4 and 5 of this Article, employment shall terminate by operation of law.

Permanent Reassignment Article 163

Police officer may, for the purpose of more expedient performance of police affairs and where, due to a change in internal organisation, a new act on internal organisation and job descriptions is adopted or an existing act is amended, unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law, be reassigned to another position in which affairs are performed in:

- 1) the same police rank; and
- 2) the immediately lower police rank corresponding to the level of educational qualification of the police officer and for which the police officer meets other requirements prescribed by the act on internal organisation and job descriptions.

Notwithstanding Article 144 of this Law and in line with paragraph 1 of this Article, a police officer may be reassigned to another position in which affairs are performed in the immediately higher police rank, provided that the police officer meets the requirements for acquiring the immediately higher police rank referred to in Article 143 of this Law.

In reassigning police officers referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article, affairs previously performed by those police officers shall be taken into account and priority shall be given to police officers with better performance ratings in the preceding two years.

In the case referred to in paragraph 1 item 1 and paragraph 2 of this Article, consent of the police officer shall not be required, while in the case referred to in paragraph 1 item 2 of this Article, consent of the police officer shall be required.

Rights of Police Officers in Case of Permanent Reassignment Article 164

Police officer permanently reassigned in line with Article 163 paragraph 1 item 2 of this Law shall retain the salary to which the police officer was entitled according to the rank at the position from which the police officer was reassigned, provided that this is more favourable.

Police officer permanently reassigned to work in another place more than 50 km from the place of residence or to another municipality shall be entitled to travel and moving expenses according to the submitted invoice and a monthly separation allowance.

Reassignment on Personal Request Article 165

Police officer may, on personal request, be permanently reassigned to another position for which the police officer meets the requirements, as well as to a position for which a lower level of professional education or a lower police rank is prescribed.

Police officer reassigned to a position with a lower police rank in line with paragraph 1 of this Article shall be entitled to a salary calculated for the highest police rank prescribed for the position to which the police officer is reassigned, provided that such rank is equal to or lower than the police rank held by the police officer prior to reassignment.

Police officer permanently reassigned, on personal request, to work in another place more than 50 km from the place of residence or to another municipality shall not be entitled to the expenses referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article.

Temporary Reassignment Article 166

Police officer may, due to work requirements and unless otherwise prescribed by a separate law, be temporarily reassigned to a position in the Police in which affairs are performed in the same rank as the affairs of the position from which the police officer is reassigned.

Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of this Article, a police officer may, for reasons of organisation of work or rationalisation of costs, also be temporarily reassigned to a position in which affairs are performed in the immediately lower rank than the rank held by the police officer.

Temporary reassignment referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article may last no longer than one year, after which the police officer shall have the right to return to the position held prior to reassignment and may not be temporarily reassigned again within two years, unless the police officer consents to another temporary reassignment before expiry of that two-year period.

Consent of the police officer shall not be required for temporary reassignment referred to in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article.

Rights of Police Officers in Case of Temporary Reassignment Article 167

Police officer temporarily reassigned in line with Article 166 of this Law shall retain the salary to which the police officer was entitled according to the rank at the position from which the police officer was reassigned, provided that this is more favourable.

Police officer temporarily reassigned to work in another place more than 50 km from the place of residence or in the territory of another municipality shall be entitled to:

- 1) a one-off financial allowance equal to the average salary paid to the police officer during the three months preceding reassignment;
- 2) the salary received by the police officer prior to temporary reassignment, provided that this is more favourable;
- 3) travel expenses for visiting the family twice a month; and
- 4) a monthly separation allowance.

Entitlements referred to in paragraph 2 items 3 and 4 of this Article shall not be payable during temporary incapacity for work.

Police officer temporarily reassigned in line with Article 166 paragraph 2 of this Law shall retain the salary to which the police officer was entitled according to the rank at the position from which the police officer was reassigned.

Deciding on Reassignment Article 168

Decision on reassignment within the Police shall be made by the Police Director, unless otherwise regulated by a separate law.

Appeal against the decision referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article may be lodged with the Minister within eight days from the date of delivery.

Appeal against the decision referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article shall not stay execution of the decision, except in respect of the reassignment decision referred to in Article 144 paragraph 10 of this Law.

Records of Assets of Police Officers

Article 169

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 084/24 as of 6 September 2024, Article 9)

- 25) entering inaccurate data in the records referred to in Article 181 paragraph 4 of this Law;
- 26) any form of corruption; and
- 27) failure to submit the reports referred to in Article 169 paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Law or entering inaccurate data in those reports.

Disciplinary Measures

Article 174

Following disciplinary measures may be imposed for minor breaches of official duty:

- 1) written warning; or
- 2) a fine of up to 20% of the monthly salary paid for the month in which the breach of official duty was committed, for a period of up to two months.

Following disciplinary measures may be imposed for serious breaches of official duty:

- 1) a fine of 20% to 40% of the monthly salary paid for the month in which the breach of official duty was committed, for a period of two to six months;
- 2) ineligibility for promotion to the immediately higher police rank for a period of two to four years;
- 3) reassignment to another position for which the immediately lower police rank is prescribed, for a period of one to two years;
- 4) conditional termination of employment; or
- 5) termination of employment.

Disciplinary measure referred to in paragraph 2 item 4 of this Article shall be imposed for a period of one to two years and shall not be executed where the police officer does not commit another breach of official duty during that period.

Disciplinary measure referred to in paragraph 2 item 5 of this Article shall be mandatory where disciplinary proceedings establish that the police officer is responsible for a serious breach of official duty involving elements of corruption.

Only one disciplinary measure may be imposed on a police officer for a single breach of official duty.

Disciplinary Proceedings

Article 175

Disciplinary proceedings for determining disciplinary liability of a police officer for a minor breach of official duty shall be initiated and conducted and disciplinary measures referred to in Article 172 paragraph 1 of this Law shall be imposed in line with the regulation governing the rights and obligations of civil servants and state employees.

Disciplinary proceedings for determining disciplinary liability of a police officer for a serious breach of official duty shall be initiated by a person authorised by the Minister (hereinafter referred to as: the disciplinary prosecutor), upon proposal of the immediate superior of the organisational unit in which the police officer works.

Disciplinary proceedings for determining disciplinary liability of a police officer for a serious breach of official duty shall be conducted and a decision proposed by the disciplinary commission appointed by the Minister.

Disciplinary measures for serious breaches of official duty shall be imposed by the Minister.

Appeal against a decision imposing a disciplinary measure referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article may be lodged with the Appeals Commission within eight days from the date of receipt of the decision.

Detailed manner of conducting disciplinary proceedings for determining disciplinary liability of a police officer for a serious breach of official duty, organisation of such proceedings and manner of keeping records of disciplinary measures imposed for serious breaches of official duty shall be prescribed by an act of the Ministry.

Temporary Suspension from Duty

Article 176

Police officer shall be temporarily suspended from duty:

- 1) where caught committing a serious breach of official duty for which mandatory termination of employment is prescribed, until completion of disciplinary proceedings;
- 2) during detention; or
- 3) where criminal proceedings have been initiated against the police officer for a criminal offence involving elements of corruption referred to in Article 127 paragraph 2 of this Law or for a criminal offence committed at work or in connection with work, until completion of criminal proceedings.

Police officer may also be temporarily suspended from duty where criminal proceedings have been initiated against the police officer for a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio or disciplinary proceedings have been initiated for a serious breach of official duty, where their presence at work would harm the interests or reputation of the Ministry and the Police or interfere with the disciplinary proceedings.

Police officer may also be temporarily suspended from duty before criminal proceedings are initiated where an order to conduct an investigation has been issued against the police officer for a criminal offence prosecuted ex officio, where their presence at work would harm the interests or reputation of the Ministry and the Police.

Immediate superior shall submit a reasoned proposal for temporary suspension from duty of the police officer within five days where any of the conditions referred to in paragraphs 1 and 3 of this Article are met and shall inform the police officer thereof.

Police Director shall, without delay, forward the proposal for temporary suspension from duty, together with their opinion on the proposal, to the Minister for decision.

Official badge, official identification card, weapon and other equipment entrusted to a police officer for the performance of affairs shall be withdrawn for the duration of temporary suspension from duty.

Deciding on Temporary Suspension Article 177

Decision on temporary suspension of a police officer shall be made by the Minister.

Appeal may be lodged against the decision referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.

Appeal referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article shall not stay execution of the decision.

Salary Compensation and Reimbursement of Salary Compensation during Temporary Suspension Article 178

During temporary suspension from duty, a police officer shall be entitled to salary compensation amounting to 70% of the salary.

Unpaid part of the salary, together with default interest, shall be paid to the police officer where:

- 1) criminal or disciplinary proceedings are discontinued; or
- 2) a final decision in criminal or disciplinary proceedings finds the police officer not liable.

Salary compensation during detention shall be paid by the authority which issued the decision ordering detention.

Authority which issued the decision ordering detention shall inform the Ministry thereof within three days.

Ministry shall submit to the authority which issued the decision ordering detention a request for reimbursement of the salary compensation paid for the period during which the police officer was detained and the contributions and taxes calculated on that salary.

7. Termination of Employment of a Police Officer

Termination of Employment by Operation of Law Article 179

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 040/26 as of 23 March 2026, Article 24)

In addition to cases of termination of employment prescribed by regulations governing civil servants and state employees, employment of a police officer shall terminate by operation of law where:

1) it is established, at the time of entering employment or during employment, that the police officer provided false information concerning fulfilment of the requirements referred to in Article 125 of this Law, on the date of delivery of the enforceable decision;

2) the police officer is sentenced to imprisonment for a criminal offence which, within the meaning of this Law, constitutes a criminal offence involving elements of corruption, regardless of the duration of the sentence, on the date of delivery of the final judgment;

3) three disciplinary measures for minor breaches of official duty or two disciplinary measures for serious breaches of official duty have been imposed on the police officer within one calendar year, on the date on which the decision establishing the breach of official duty becomes enforceable;

4) the police officer has unlawfully obtained personal or pecuniary gain for themselves or another person in connection with service; or

5) the Commission for the Verification of Security Impediments has established the existence of a security impediment to further work in a police rank referred to in Article 162 paragraph 1 items 3, 4 and 5 of this Law, on the date of adoption of the decision.

In the case referred to in paragraph 1 item 5 of this Article, the police officer shall have the right to appeal in line with the law governing administrative procedure.

Appeal referred to in paragraph 2 of this Article shall not stay execution of the decision.

Termination of Employment on Personal Request Article 180

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 003/23 as of 10 January 2023, Article 3)

(Law Amending the Law on Internal Affairs, Official Gazette of Montenegro 084/24 as of 6 September 2024, Article 11)

Notwithstanding the requirements prescribed by the law governing pension and disability insurance, a police officer whose employment terminates on personal request and with the consent of the Police Director shall be entitled to a pension upon reaching at least 50 years of age and 30 years of pensionable service, of which at least ten years were effectively spent in positions in which the length of pensionable service is calculated at an accelerated rate or upon reaching 40 years of pensionable service and at least 50 years of age.

Pension of the police officer referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be determined in the manner prescribed by the law governing pension and disability insurance, while, in determining the personal coefficient, where more favourable for the police officer, the personal coefficient shall be determined on the basis of the salary or salary compensation received throughout the calendar year preceding the year in which the right to pension is exercised.

Amount of the pension determined in line with paragraph 2 of this Article shall be increased by up to 20%, provided that the amount of that pension may not exceed the maximum amount of the old-age pension determined in line with the law governing pension and disability insurance.

Provisions of the law governing pension and disability insurance shall apply to the exercise, use and adjustment of the pension to which the police officer is entitled under this Article.

Right to a pension under this Article may be exercised from 1 January 2023 until 31 December 2028.

Provisions of this Law concerning the right to a pension on this basis, as well as all other rights, obligations, duties and responsibilities and provisions concerning the official badge and official identification card of police officers performing internal control of the Police, shall apply accordingly to police officers of the Ministry performing affairs directly related to police affairs referred to in Article 2 of this Law, namely affairs concerning security supervision and security protection of the Ministry.

Working Time Schedule Article 181

Police shall be organised so that police affairs are performed continuously, 24 hours a day.

Performance of police affairs referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article shall be ensured through work in shifts and rotations, introduction of overtime work, on-call duty, standby duty and redistribution of working time.

Working time schedule in the Police shall be determined by the Police Director in line with general labour regulations and regulations governing state administration.

Ministry shall keep central records of the work of police officers in shifts and rotations, overtime work, standby duty, on-call duty and redistribution of working time.

Records referred to in paragraph 4 of this Article shall contain data on the police officer (name and surname and official identification card number), data on shifts and rotations, the specific police affair, hours of overtime work, standby duty, on-call duty and redistribution of working time.

Work Organised in a Special Manner
